

College of Pharmacy,
Wuhan University,
Wuhan, Hubei 430072, P.R. China
March 27, 2006

To whom it may concern,

As one of Dr. Yang's best friends, I am pleased to recommend him as a candidate for the postdoctoral position in your department. We have been in the same research group which focuses on the biological activities of the mycelia of Ganoderma lucidum, which is a kind of traditional Chinese medicine.

In the past four years, I was deeply touched by his diligence and intelligence. Yang is always enjoying his life in the research fields that he is interested scientific fields. And in our discussion, he was also glad to share his experiences and ideas to others. And he has taken charge two or three research projects simultaneously. I noticed that he often arrived at the laboratory at 8:00 am, and left back at 11:00 pm. Furthermore, Yang is an aggressive individual with strong self-motivation. He always expressed his willing to continue his researches in the United States, because the American holds a leading position in the field of Life Sciences.

He is also a very enthusiastic person and has the ability to work well with others in the laboratory. As far as I know, Yang has a calm and introverted disposition in the first impression for others. However, after you familiarize with him, you will find that he actually is an active and kind person.

In my opinion, Dr. Yang has potential in the Life Sciences. And I think that Dr. Yang well be a successful researcher in the further. I strongly recommended that Yang for the postdoctoral position in your department. Your favorable consideration of his admission will be highly appreciated.

Best regards,

Jing Liu
Associate Professor
College of Pharmacy
Wuhan University
jingl@whu.edu.cn